Nevertheless, Mr. Aberhart had the first chance any premier of this province has yet had of benefiting the people of Alberta. The election he fought in 1935 was against a government already defeated by its own corruption, and this condition coupled with his resolute promises, resulted in an overwhelming endorsement of his program by the electors.

When it became evident that there was not the smallest chance of his being the premier, he did not flinch, he did not even to establish the just price, it was not necessary for him to be "chased into the tail end of the parade" as he declared could happen if he were unsuccessful. He had still other and quite powerful cards to play; among them being the promise of lower taxation, the provincial public debt problem, and economy in government administration. Had he frantically attempted to turn the tables by conversion at lower interest rates, possibly with federal assistance, his followers would, no doubt, have been disappointed. But not only would they have stood by him, it is also quite probable that the "ragtag and bobtail" elements who heretofore had opposed him, seeing in such measures an effort to establish business-like and honest administration, also would have backed him. Again, when he is rightly claimed distress was evident, following the slump of 1939, he might have set an example of being a leader, but the government administration by cutting the salaries of cabinet ministers. True, the saving would have been small, but the gesture would have proven sincerity.

It is in sincerity that the premier has failed most miserably, he stated in the legislature last week that the Prime Minister of Canada had not fulfilled his promise to give every opportunity to the South to credit government of Alberta to carry out its plans. He knew as well as Mr. King knew that both Dominion and provincial governments function within the provisions laid down in the British North America Act. Let this be no mistake, but for that Act, Mr. Aberhart's boasted love of democracy would have demonstrated itself in the legislature last week when he ran on strictly Nazi lines—control of the press and radio, denial of their rights in a court of law to certain classes of citizens, and so on. It is a simple statement of fact, that by every canon of conduct as a democratic leader he has failed miserably, and the balance found wanting. He has revealed himself to the public of today as a purely egotistical opportunist.

An interesting item in the budget presented by Hon. Solon E. Low is the sum of $693,130 asked for the Treasury House appropriation. This is said to represent an increase of $58,010.00 over the total voted last year, or practically double the amount. However, the taxpayer need not worry over this, as Mr. Han't Mr. Low assured us that the whole thing is merely a book debt! Just like the banks!
